PREPARING TO BUILD CEMENT FACTORY LINE

Prof. Neighbour Today Surveying Under Direction of C. & N. W. and I. C. Railway Cos.

LOCATING HIGHWAY BOUNDRIES

Looks as Though Track Laying Would Begin This Fall.

Prof. L. B. Neighbor has been employed by the Chicago & Northwestern and Illinois Central Railway companies to survey and locate the exact boundaries of the highway extending from city limits to the place where the Sandusky Cement company intends erecting its big cement plant. This is evidence that the two railway companies are intending to begin work on the extension sometime this fall. Prof. Neighbor commenced work this morning. Several of the railway officials were in Dixon this week and had a brief conference with Prof. Neighbor. There has been some controversy as to the exact location of the highway and the railway companies want this matter settled beyond any doubt.

JUDGE FARRAND HELD COURT

Several Matters Heard and Another Adjournment Taken to Dec. 26,

Judge Farrand re-opened the September term of the Lee county circuit court Friday to hear several matters which had been deferred. The work taken up yesterday and today was as follows:

People vs. Wm. N. Gilbert, nuisance. Motion for a new trial withdrawn. Defendant sentenced under verdict to pay a fine of $35 and costs of suit. Defendant to stand committed to county jail until fine and costs are paid.

Mrs. William Vaughn died this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of J. M. Valle 314 Pine street. Mrs. Vaughn is the mother of Mrs. M. P. Graham of Sterling.

—Uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, meet tonight.

—Miss Sue Winn left today for Amboy where she will visit friends.

TEAMS TIE IN THE FIRST HALF

North and South Side High Schools Meet on Gridiron.

More interest was felt in this afternoon's football game between the two high school teams than has been exhibited in any game for a good while. Much betting was done among local sports. The betting was about even in most cases, although the Nofth Side team seemed to be favored. Bernie Schuler, who is a star player and had been tabooed from playing for some time by his parents, at last received consent to play and was enthusiastically received by the South Side team of which he was a member. The South Side team has the advantage in weight while it seems to be conceded that the North Side team plays a speedier game.

First half.—South Side kicked off at 3:15. About 800 people are witnessing the game. The crowd is enthusiastic and cheers both teams heartily. The ball remained in the hands of the South Side team most of the time but the North Side team has fought pluckily every attempt to advance the ball. Neither team scored in first half. Score 0 to 0.

CLIPPER DOING WELL

Up to Date Over $5000 Has Been Subscribed. $2000 More is Wanted.

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN MR. ORTT

Men Who Have Subscribed Will Double Amount if Necessary.

Subscriptions for the re-organization of the Clipper Lawn Mower company are coming in rapidly. Up to date there has been $5000 subscribed, and the list contains some of the most prominent business and professional men in Dixon.

These men want to see the "Clipper" remain in Dixon. They have the utmost confidence in Mr. Ortt as a business man, and they believe the plant will be a good thing for Dixon, and will aid materially in the city's progress. Several of the men who have subscribed stand ready to double their subscriptions if necessary. There is yet about $2000 to raise, and the prospects for obtaining this additional amount is very flattering. As soon as this money is subscribed, work will commence on the new building and everything possible will be done to push the work along.

BROKE LEG IN PRACTICE

Sterling Boy Victim of a Foot Ball Tackle.

Arthur Stoekle, son of ex-Alderman and Mrs. William Stoekle of Sterling, suffered a bad fracture of the right leg as the result of a spirited foot ball game which he entered into with too much strenuosity Thursday afternoon. He and several other boys were amusing themselves when in some way he got twisted around in a tackle and the leg was broken between the knee and the ankle.

TWO MORE I. C. MAIL TRAINS

Mail Car on Morning South Bound and Afternoon North.

Lowden's Residence Up Rapidly.

The construction of Col. Frank O. Lowden's country residence situated on his Oregon estate, "Sinnissippi Farm," is going forward rapidly under the direction of Contractor McAlpine. The walls consisting of cement and pressed brick, elaborated with granite are in course of construction, having already passed the second story line. It is expected to have the work under roof before winter sets in and a small army of masons and builders are employed in pushing the construction. The dimensions are of magnitude and when completed the residence will be one of the finest country seats in the state.

Tonsiline Cures Smokers' Sore Throat

Habitual smokers are often troubled with inflammation of the throat. This is called smokers' sore throat, and frequently becomes so painful that food is swallowed with difficulty.

If nothing is done to prevent it, the disease may develop into cancer of the throat. Hundreds of men have had to resort to surgical operations because of it—many have died as a result of it.

If you have smokers' sore throat, don't disregard it. It may be gone tomorrow but it will surely return again and in a more severe form. It is Nature's danger signal.

TONSILINE will positively cure you and keep the throat clean and healthy, preventing the consequences of neglect. TONSILINE is the result of years of careful study and practical work and is made from drugs used for years in the cure of throat diseases. TONSILINE destroys the poison germs of all kinds of sore throat and cleanses away painful and poisonous ulceration. It soothes and heals the tender mouth and throat membranes and removes the cause of throat trouble.

A quick, safe, soothing, healing, antiseptic cure for Sore Throat, briefly describes TONSILINE.

We know it will do all we claim for it, because it has never failed.

"Has that girl next door to you still got her parlor melodeon?"

"No, she exchanged it for a cornet, I'm glad to say."

"But, gracious, if she plays the cornet that's worse, isn't it?"

"Not at all. It's only half as bad. She can't sing while she's playing the cornet."

Dear Gus:—I have solved the mother-in-law problem; just give her regularly Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea It will make her healthy, happy and docile as a lamb. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Rowland Bros.

CHAPTER XVII.

UNCLE EB and David were away buying cattle half the week, but Elizabeth Brower was always at home to look after my comfort. She was up betimes in the morning and singing at her work long before I was out of bed. When the breakfast was near ready she came to my door with a call so full of cheerfulness and good nature it was the best thing in the day. And often at night I have known her to come into my room when I was lying awake with some hard problem to see that I was properly covered or that my window was not open too far. As we sat alone together of an evening I have seen her listen for hours while I was committing the odes of Horace with a curiosity that finally gave way to resignation. Sometimes she would look over my shoulder at the printed page and try to discern some meaning in it. When Uncle Eb was with us he would often sit a long time, his head turned attentively as the lines came rattling off my tongue.

"Cur'us talk," he said one evening as I paused a moment, while he crossed the room for a drink of water. "Don' seem t' make no kind o' sense. I can make out a word here an' there, but fer good, sound, common sense I call it a purty thin crop."

Hope wrote me every week for a time. A church choir had offered her a place soon after she went to the big city. She came home intending to surprise us all the first summer, but unfortunately I had gone away in the woods with a party of surveyors and missed her. We were a month in the wilderness and came out a little west of Albany, where I took a boat for New York to see Hope. I came down the North river between the great smoky cities on either side of it one damp and chilly morning. The noise, the crowds, the immensity of the town appalled me.

At John Fuller's I found that Hope had gone home, and, while they tried to detain me longer, I came back on the night boat of the same day. Hope and I passed each other in that journey, and I did not see her until the summer preceding my third and last year in college, the faculty having allowed me to take two years in one. Her letters had come less frequently, and when she came I saw a grand young lady of fine manners, her beauty shaping to an ampler mold, her form straightening to the dignity of womanhood.

At the depot our hands were cold and trembling with excitement, neither of us, I fancy, knowing quite how far to go in our greeting. Our correspondence had been true to the promise made mother. There had not been a word of love in it, only now and then a suggestion of our tender feeling. We hesitated only for the briefest moment. Then I put my arm about her neck and kissed her.

"I am so glad to see you," she said.

Well, she was charming and beautiful, but different, and probably not more different than was I. She was no longer the laughing, simple mannered child of Faraway, whose heart was as one's hand before him in the daylight. She had now a bit of the woman's reserve—her prudence, her skill in hiding the things of the heart. I loved her more than ever, but somehow I felt it hopeless; that she had grown out of my life. She was much in request among the people of Hillsborough, and we went about a good deal and had many callers. But we had little time to ourselves. She seemed to avoid that and had much to say of the grand young men who came to call on her in the great city.

Anyhow it all hurt me to the soul and even robbed me of my sleep. A better lover than I would have made an end of dallying and got at the truth, come what might. But I was of the Puritans and not of the cavaliers, and my way was that which God had marked for me, albeit I must own no man had ever a keener eye for a lovely woman or more heart to please her. A mighty pride had come to me, and I had rather have thrown my heart to vultures than see it an unwelcome offering. And I was quite out of courage with Hope. She, I dare say, was as much out of patience with me.

She returned in the late summer, and I went back to my work at college in a hopeless fashion that gave way under the whip of a strong will.

I made myself as contented as possible. I knew all the pretty girls and went about with some of them to the entertainments of the college season. At last came the long looked for day of my graduation, the end of my student life.

The streets of the town were thronged, every student having the college colors in his coat lapel. The little company of graduates trembled with fright as the people crowded into the church, whispering and fanning themselves, in eager anticipation. As the former looked from the two side pews where they sat many familiar faces greeted them—the faces of fathers and mothers aglow with the inner light of pride and pleasure, the faces of many they loved come to claim a share in the glory of that day. I found my own, I remember, but none of them gave me such help as that of Uncle Eb. However I might fare, none would feel the pride or disgrace of it more keenly than he. I shall never forget how he turned his head to catch every word when I ascended the platform.

As I warmed to my argument I could see him nudging the arm of David, who sat beside him, as if to say, "There's the boy that came over the hills with me in a pack basket." When I stopped a moment, groping for the next word, he leaned forward, embracing his knee firmly as if intending to draw off a boot. It was all the assistance he could give me. When the exercises were over I found Uncle Eb by the front door of the church waiting for me.

"Willie, ye done noble!" said he.

"Did my very best, Uncle Eb," I replied.

"Liked it grand, I did sartin."

"Glad you liked it, Uncle Eb."

"Showed great larnin'. Who was the man 'at give out the pictur's?"

He meant the president who had conferred the degrees. I spoke the name.

"Deceivin' lookin' man, ain't he? Seen him often, but never took no pertick'lar notice of him before."

"How deceiving?" I inquired.

"Talked so kind of plain," he replied. "I could understan' him as easy as though he'd been swappin' hosses. But when you got up, Bill, why, you jes' riz right up in the air, an' there couldn't no dum fool tell what you was talkin' 'bout."

Whereat I concluded that Uncle Eb's humor was as deep as it was kindly, but I have never been quite sure whether the remark was a compliment or a bit of satire.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE folks of Faraway have been carefully if rudely pictured, but the look of my own person since I grew to the stature of manhood I have left wholly to the imagination of the reader. I will wager he knew long since what manner of man I was and has measured me to the fraction of an inch and knows even the color of my hair and eyes from having been so long in my company. If not—well, I shall have to write him a letter.

When Uncle Eb and I took the train for New York that summer day in 1860, some fifteen years after we came down Paradise road with the dog and wagon and pack basket, my head, which in that far day came only to the latitude of his trouser pocket, had now mounted six inches above his own. That is all I can say here on that branch of my subject. I was leaving to seek my fortune in the big city. Uncle Eb was off for a holiday and to see Hope and bring her home for a short visit. I remember with what sadness I looked back that morning at mother and father as they stood by the gate slowly waving their handkerchiefs. Our home at last was emptied of its young, and even as they looked the shadow of old age must have fallen suddenly before them. I knew how they would go back into that lonely room and how, while the clock went on with its ticking, Elizabeth would sit down and cover her face for a moment, while David would make haste to take up his chores.

We sat in silence a long time after the train was off, a mighty sadness holding our tongues. Uncle Eb, who had never ridden a long journey on the cars before, had put on his grand suit of broadcloth. The day was hot and dusty, and before we had gone far he was sadly soiled. But a suit never gave him any worry once it was on. He sat calmly, holding his knee in his hands and looking out of the open window, a squint in his eyes that stood for some high degree of interest in the scenery.

"What do you think of this country?" I inquired.

"Looks purty fair," said he as he brushed his face with his handkerchief and coughed to clear his throat of the dust, "but 'tain't quite so pleasant to the taste as some other parts o' the country. I ruther liked the flavor of St. Lawrence all through, but Jefferson is a leetle gritty."

He put down the window as he spoke.

"A leetle tobaccer 'll improve it some," he added as his hand went down for the old silver box. "The way these cars dew rip along! Consarned if it ain't flyin'! Kind o' makes me feel like a bird."

The railroad was then not the familiar thing it is now in the north country. The bull in the fields had not yet come to an understanding of its rights and was frequently tempted into argument with a locomotive. Bill Fountain, who came out of a back township, one day had even tied his faithful hound to the rear platform.

Our train came to a long stop for wood and water near midday, and then we opened the lunch basket that mother had given us.

"Neighbor," said a solemn faced man who sat in front of us, "do you think the cars are ag'in the Bible? D' you think a Christian orter ride on 'em?"

"Sartin," said Uncle Eb. "Less the

Dramatic Notes

In announcing the appearance of the Paraders at the opera house next Tuesday night, Manager Eastman confidently believes that he is offering his patrons the very best performance of musical comedy that has come this way in many a day. The La Salle Theatre, Chicago, which stands sponsor for "The Paraders," is conceded to be the best producing house for these light, frothy frivelities which are so strongly in vogue nowadays, and "The Paraders," which comes directly here from the home theatre, enjoyed the longest run of any of the La Salle productions within the past five years, with the single exception of "The Isle of Spice." It comes here with nearly all the original cast, the famous La Salle broilers, and a great ensemble of fifty singing and dancing boys and girls, who are pronounced as giving a great performance, up-to-date and notable in every way. All the original musical numbers have been retained, and several new ones added since the original run at the La Salle Theatre, and the performance is one of a standard of excellence rarely reached in the "road" attraction of today.

A Poor Relation.

Of all the unpretentious dramas that appeal to the healthy emotions and sympathies of the people none has found more permanent lodgment in the affections of theatregoers than Sol Smith Russell's "A Poor Relation." This admirable drama will be presented at the opera house in this city next Wednesday night.

The story of the kind-hearted, lovable inventor whose generous nature and unique humor are so effectively revealed in his charitable care for an orphan boy is told in irresistible fashion in this play. His own struggles against misfortune and the villainy of those who rob him of the designs which it has taken years of labor for him to perfect, arouses the keenest interest, the interest invariably awakened by a contest between honesty and dishonesty; good and evil. In the Noah Vale, the despised poor relation, triumphs and comes finally into possession of the honors and emoluments his inventive genius has earned.

"A Poor Relation" possesses two virtues, in a marked degree, pathos and humor. The two are so nicely blended as to afford effective contrast, avoid monotony and ensure variety. The scenes between Noah Vale and the little boy he befriends even though at the point of starvation himself, are rich in humor and tenderness of sentiment. Noah's visit, when faint with hunger, to the house of a rich relative, and the emotion that overcomes him at the sight of a table richly syread with eatables, is another episode that leaves a lasting impression upon the spectator, for Noah tries to conceal the emotion that the sight of the food has aroused for fear his abject poperty should be suspected.

"The Bowery News Girl."

Joseph Totten, the author of the comedy-drama, "The Bowery News Girl," which is playing to crowded houses nightly and giving the best of satisfaction, is also the author of that greatest musical comedies, 'The Hall Room Boys," and of the most sensational of all productions, "West Point '98," "The Bowery News Girl" comes to the Dixon opera house night of Nov. 27, Mr. Totten is traveling with the company and directs all performances.

WITH THE REVIVALIST

Program of Services Tomorrow at Christian Church Speaks to Women in Afternoon.

GAVE SERMON ON AMUSEMEMTS

Evangelist Says Dancing Church Member Makes Poor Christian.

More interest is manifest in the revival at the Christian church than at any time since it's beginning nearly three weeks ago. This is shown by the large audiences present and the number coming forward to be baptized. Some one every night, which is a fruitful sign that the gospel will reach the hearts of men, when preached in a plain, practical way.

This evening the evangelist will preach on the subject "Conversion in High Life:" Sunday morning on the subject, "The Second Coming of Christ" Sunday afternoon, Mr. Harlow will lecture to women only on the subject, "Woman's Place and Power." At the Sunday evening service the subject will be, "Rebuilding the Walls" or "Reformations of the World." Very large audiences are expected to be present at all of these services, since Mr. Harlow says that he expects to preach some of his best sermons.

Last night's sermon on Amusements was very helpful and convincing. The revivalist took his text from Gal. 6:7-8 and said some just as striking things as "Billy" Sunday. The only difference being Mr. Harlow said them in his own dignified and less vehement way. It seemed that from his convincing arguments that no one could, whether a church member or a sinner, endorse the ball room, theater or the card table. He showed what these would lead to in wrecking the spiritual, intellectual and physical life of young people. The evangelist never knew a theater-going, card playing, dancing church member to ever amount to any thing as a Christian. He had never known but one man, who frequented the ball room dance, who did not drink. His arguments, that worldly amusements led to evil temptations, to drink, waste of time and money was most convincing.

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Interesting items gleaned from the early files of THE DIXON TELEGRAP.

December 1, 1859, Daniel A. Sheffield was married with Mrs. Mary N. Brookner.

Milton Santee and Miss Julia Halley were married Dec. 8. Mr. Santee was county surveyor of Lee county a number of years.

Dec. 20, Geo. L. Howell and Miss Emmie P. Little were married.

Jan. 1860, hay sold at three dollars a ton; butter at six cents a pound.

The thermometer was also low, 25 degrees below zero, but sleighing good.

At Sugar Grove John F. Stager and Harriet Ann Scovey were married.

J. P. Pomeroy opened his extensive fruit and confectionary store.

THE TELEGRAPH gives a strange legal case brought under the fugitive slave law. A family of five slaves, man, wife and three children, were shipped in a vessel from a southern part for Texas; but the ship on account of severe storms landed in New York and the slaves were on a writ taken before a court of that city and the judge held that they could not be held as slaves by the laws of New York. However, the citizens of that city, as a matter of fair dealing with the southern plaintiff and a desire for trade, perhaps, by public subscription, paid the owner for his slaves. Getting into the supreme court the affair became a famous case at law.

By a fire in his machine shops Col. Dement lost $25,000.

John B. Wyman was elected Mayor of Amboy.

Attention is called to the card in the paper of B. H. Trusdell a "talented young lawyer of Amboy."

Anton Harms of Palmyra advertises a horse sale.

THE TELEGRAPH has an extensive notice of Grand Detour, believing that it is destined to be the Lowell of the west. It had then two manufacturing establishments; Solon Cummin's flouring mill and the Andrus & Bosworth plow factory; sixty-five workmen were employed.

There was trouble in the fifties over the Grand Detour post office: Dr. Morse, the p., m. "was compiled to put the business in the hands of a republican deputy;" and Abe Watts claimed that he and Mr. Throop were the only democrats in the town and they refused to act.

Frederick W. Coe of Palmyra and Hiram Terry of Pawpaw, were selected to represent the Lee county agricultural society at the meeting of the state society.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

In the latter part of April, 1861, when citizens were volunteering for the war, though most of the young men who joined the army were unmarried, a few of the volunteers left families unprovided for fully.

There was a meeting at the court house at that time for the purpose of raising funds for unprovided families of soldiers; for immediate wants, at least. The meeting was composed of business men of Dixon, with no regard for political party lines, as may be seen by the following list of familiar (to old settlers) names and the amounts subscribed by each.

WAS POPULAR CONCERT

Dixon High School Glee Club and Orchestra Entertained Large Audience Last Night.

PROF. DELONG PLEASING SOLOIST

Work of Young People Is a Credit to Director.

The concert given by the Dixon high school at the Presbyterian church last night was largely attended. The program was a splendid one, and its participants gave universal satisfaction.

Prof. A. N. DeLong, who took a prominent part on the program, is a singer of note. His work last night was well received by a critical audience. He possesses a strong, clear voice, and while singing he seems to throw his whole personality into the spirit of the song. Dixon's musical talent will be delighted to receive Prof. DeLong into its circles. In his singing Prof. DeLong was accompanied by Prof. A. H. Stoddard.

Miss Rachel Plummer sang "Blossoms" very beautifully. The young lady did remarkably well last evening. The singer was accompanied by Miss Jacobus.

Dixon's favorite young singer, Miss Hazelle Kenneth, sang "Joy" in her usual sweet and pleasant manner. Miss Kenneth was accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Smith.

The two surprises of the evening were the work of the Glee club and the orchestra. These organizations have developed wonderfully in their work; their friends were delighted with the excellent manner in which they performed their part on the program. The glee club sang "In Old Madrid", in a way that brought forth hearty applause.

The personnel of the glee club is as follows:

Rachel Plummer, Marion Hennessy, Hazelle Kenneth, Winnifred Puterbaugh, Gladys Steel, Helen Puterbaugh, Maude Reynolds, Bessie Cahill, Grace Merriman, Helen Haley, Lucile Morrison, Vera Jacobus, pianist.

The orchestra opened the concert with a splendid selection, and during the evening favored the audience with two additional selections. They play well together and with practice will make a first class high school orchestra. The personnel of the orchestra is as follows:

Mabel Ankeny, Inez Snyder, Patricia Snyder, Harry McManus, Harold Hursh, Chas. Webster, Hill Leith, Arthur Gonnerman, Henry Petit, Orval Brace, Walter Heckman, Bennie Ulch, Otto Walters, Pianist.

A WARNING TO YOUMG MEN

In the Words of Judge Farrand When Sentencing Murderer.

In passing sentence of 30 years imprisonment in the penitentiary on Thos. Bundy, a self-confessed murderer, Judge Farrand, who has been holding court at Ottawa, is reported to have said: "Last January at Dixon, a young man of your age stood before me to receive his sentence on a plea of guilty to the crime of murder. What I said to him then, I want to, in part, say to you now; he was intoxicated when he committed the crime, as I believe you were when you committed the offense to which you have entered the plea of guilty. Intoxication is no defense in this case. The young man who at your age has become a frequenter of salcons and a habitual drinker of intoxicating liquors, is almost certain of moral death before he reaches mature manhood. Could I speak to the young men of this nation I would beg of them to shun the saloon; let not its shadows fall upon you; they will blight and finally destroy your young manhood."

C. H. Preston, night operator at the I. C. depot, was called to his home in Bloomington, on account of the illness of his mother.

The Chicago man who purchased 10,000 barrels of whisky at Louisville "for his own use" must be going to run for something.

A Southern man advertises for a lost cow "with one horn that gives milk.' There would be more money for her in a museum than in a dairy.

"There's just two things that breaks up a man's home," says Mike Maloney. "Whats them?" says Bob Fillson. "Woman's love for dry goods and man's love for wet goods, By Gosh," says Mike.

"A shirt went through the Parson's laundry last week with two diamond studs in the bosom and the owner got them back. This is the most remarkable shirt tale in Kansas,' giggingly remarks the shameless editor of the Iola Register.

A REGARD FOR APPEARANCE.

A milliner endeavored to sell to a colored woman one of the last season's hats at a very moderate price. It was a big white picture-hat.

"Law, no, honey!" exclaimed the woman. "I could nevah wear that. I'd look jes' like a blueberry in a pan of milk."

MAUD MULLER TO DATE.

Maud Muller, on a summer's morn,
Heard the toot of a motor horn.

She saw the judge go scorching past,
"Gee!" said Maud, "he's going fast."

And then she thought of the sighs and tears
The judge had caused her all these years.

"He's breaking the law at that speed," quoth she,
"Ha! ha! ha! ha! here's revenge for me!"

So she set her teeth, and ne'er e'en flinched,
While she took his number and had him pinched.

Thanksgiving Dinner.

The Delmonico will serve a most elaborate 5 course dinner on Thanksgiving day. Better make your plans to dine at the Delmonico on that day. All the season's delicacies served and right. UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE

In Lutheran Church Thursday With Dr. Cryor as Speaker.

The annual union Thanksgiving service is to be held in the Lutheran church next Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The speaker selected for this year is Rev. Dr. S. S. Cryor of the Presbyterian church.

Stubble Fire Threatened Corn.

A fire swept across the fields on the farm of F. F. Heckman east of Stone Station Thursday afternoon which for a time threatened to be disastrous, but the result was only a small amount of damage.

It is supposed that the fire started from a spark dropped from an engine on the Peoria line of the Northwestern railway. A large field of oats stubble lies along the railway, and it being very dry, caught fire at once and blazed savagely. A field of unhusked corn was threatened and Agent Marsh of the Northwestern sent an engine and fifteen men to fight the fire. Only a small corner of the field was burned.

Anniversary at Presbyterian.

We wish to call attention again to the sixth anniversary of Dr. Cryor's pastorate in Dixon which will be observed at the Presbyterian church by special services morning and evening tomorrow. It is especially urged that every member of the church regard it as a rally and be present.

St. Louis physicians are going to have a dead beat directory which will contain the names of fifteen thousand persons who fail to pay their doctor bills. If St. Louis people ever retaliate by publishing a directory of the doctors who have failed to make the cures for which they are paid they will probably have a complete roster of the medical fraternity of St. Louis.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Past and Prospective

Women in Society.

Leave your order for engraved calling cards at this office Also place an order for your husbands—that will suit him better than a box of cigars for Christmas.

The Owl Club will give a dance at Armory hall tonight. The floor is in fine shape.

The Peoria Avenue Reading club will meet with Mrs. E. W. Smith at 2:30 Monday afternoon, when a Thanksgiving program will be given.

About thirty couples attended Miss Moody's dancing school at Rosbrook's hall last evening. Several new dances were introduced. The class will not meet again until after the Elks' fair.

Mrs. Daniel Knapp of 212 Fifth street gave a tea party to her lady friends on Thursday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in honor of Mrs. Leila Dierdorff of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Goetzenberger of Minneapolis Minn. All ladies present enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon.

Reception for Students.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of Dixon College will entertain in College Chapel tonight in honor of the faculty and the new students.

Box Social.

Miss Inez Hursh will give a box social at her school, the White Temple, on the Chicago road a few miles from Dixon, Friday evening, December 8.

Attend Banquet at Sterling.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Deland and Robert Anderson attended the fifth annual banquet of the Liberty Conclave No. 2 Uniform Rank Knights of the Globe, given at Sterling last evening. The banquet was held at the European Cafe, Sterling's most fashionable resort.

Entertains Cohan and Wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Cohan, the leading people in "Hoosier Girl" company were entertained during the company's stay in Dixon, by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Bryan, 104 East Boyd street. Mrs. Cohan, or "Kate Watson" as she is known to the public, is an intimate friend of the Bryan's they having been near neighbors at Princeton, Ill.

Celebrate Silver Wedding.

About seventy-five friends assisted Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Hummel of Palmyra township to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary today. Guests were present from Dixon and Sterling. United States District Judge Sol. H. Bethea of Chicago was in attendance. The presents were many, valuable and beautiful. The presentation speech was delivered in the German language by Rev. Schneider, pastor of the West Jordon church in Jordon township, Whiteside county.

Shadow Social.

A Shadow social was given at the Walker school by the teacher Miss Ollie Hart, and pupils. A good program was rendered. The sale of shadow's caused much merriment. The shadow bringing the highest price was Miss Agnes Tague's, teacher at the Cook school, which brought $2.15. Messrs. C. P. Munn and Henry Duffy presided at the sale of shadows and by their efforts the sum of $16.05 was realized. There was a good attendance and all enjoyed the evening very much.

Dumas' Spicy Recipe.

When Alexandre Dumas pere was at the summit of his ambition as an author he said, "I wish to finish my literary career by writing a cookbook," and in 1873 he wrote the "Grand Dictionaire de Cuisine." This book is as full of the whimwhams of the man of genius as his novels are. The seasoning used is a trifle strong for refined gastronomic tastes of today. It is better suited, of course, to the ennuied palates of men of the world than to those used to "family cooking." Oysters "a la Alexandre Dumas" will serve as a specimen recipe: Mix a large half teaspoonful of white pepper and a heaping teaspoonful of salt together. Add this mixture to shallot chopped fine. Add also a teaspoonful of chopped chives and half a teaspoonful of minced parsley. Mix lightly together and pour in a teaspoonful of olive oil. Add six drops of tabasco sauce, a saltspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a gill of vinegar. Serve the sauce on raw oysters, pouring a little of it on each one as you serve them.

With the Politicians.

Franklin Reporter: Judge R. H. Scott of Dixon was in our village Tuesday looking to see that none of the rails of his political fence have been misplaced in the four years of his term as county judge. He found everything in good repair and those with whom he renewed old acquaintanceship ready to endorse him for a second term. The judge has made a good officer and his decisions have been upheld by the higher courts. There is no logical reason why he should not be honored by our people with a re-election.

Pawpaw Times: John M. Sterling of Dixon was in town Monday, meeting his many friends. Mr. Sterling is a candidate for the office of county treasurers the office he once filled with great credit to himself and to the entire satisfaction of the people of the county.

Mr. Sterling has been a life long republican, has spent his time and money to help further the interest of the republican party, is a clean man and should be entitled to the careful consideration of the voters at the primaries on April 28, 1906.

Amboy News: County Judge Robert H. Scott was shaking hands with Amboy friends Saturday. The Judge is a candidate for re-election subject to the decision of the republican voters at the spring primaries. Judge Scott has filled the office very acceptably and ought to be entitled to a second term.

Amboy News: Deputy Sheriff M. J. McGowan was in town Saturday in the interest of his candidacy for sheriff of Lee county. Mr. McGowan's four years' administration of the sheriff's office was highly satisfactory to the people of Lee county and for this reason he has confidence in going before them and asking for a second term. He has been an efficient party worker, serving as chairman of the republican county central committee through two presidential campaigns, those of McKinley and Roosevelt. His ability and experience we dare say is not surpassed by any incumbent of a sheriff's office in the state of Illinois.

Atty. Bardwell Will Speak.

Hon. A. C. Bardwell will give a talk to men at the meeting of the Sunny Side league at 8 o'clock on Monday evening at the Lutheran church. All men, whether members of the league or not, should turn out and hear him.

—Henry Gross is down from Ashton today.

—Senator C. P. Gardner of Mendota was in Dixon today on legal business.

—Jacob Levi has resumed his duties in the Plymouth after a week's illness.

—G. A. Raymer went to Chicago this morning where he will remain for a week.

—Chas. Crabtree left last night for Iola, Kas., after a short visit at his home in this city.

—Mrs. O. B Blackman is expected home soon after a two months' visit in eastern cities.

—Gilbert Batten of Chicago is visiting his sister, Mrs. A. E. Sinclair of 801 Second street.

—Mrs. R. M. Ayres and daughter, Hazel, drove to Polo to spend Sunday with relatives in that city.

—Mrs. A. E. Sinclair is home from three days attendance at the Rebecca Assembly in Springfield.

—Barney Bush has returned from Mt. Morris where he is doing masonry work to spend Sunday with his family He will return again Monday.

—Miss Minnie Wagner is here today from Ashton. Mrs. F. O. Smith, George B. Garrett, Mrs. J. H. Byer and daughter and H. H. Sindlinger are also visitors from that thriving little town.

—Attorney M. B. Flesher of Wenoka, Indian Territory, will visit friends in this city next week. Mr. Flesher played third base on the college baseball team in 1898, and will stop here on his way to Chicago to take in the big football game Thanksgiving.

A Kansas City man came up to a lecturer in a hotel there, saying with enthusiasm:

"Well, sir, I enjoyed your lecture very much last night."

"I didn't see you there."

"Oh, I wasn't there."

"Well, what do you mean by telling me you enjoyed my lecture, and you were not present?"

"Oh, I bought tickets for my girl's father and mother, and they both went."

The lecturer felt that he had not talked in vain.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

constable's after him—then I think he orter be on a balky hoss."

"Wife an' I hes talked it over a good deal," said the man. "Some says it's ag'in the Bible. The minister 'at preaches over 'n our neighborhood says if God had wanted men t' fly he'd gi'n 'em wings."

"S'pose if he'd ever wanted 'm t' skate he'd hed 'em born with skates on?" said Uncle Eb.

"Dunno," said the man. "It behooves us all to be careful. The Bible says, 'Go not after new things.'"

"My friend," said Uncle Eb between bites of a doughnut, "I don' care what I ride in so long as 'tain't a hearse. I want sumthin' 'at's comfortable an' purty middlin' spry. It'll do us good up here t' git jerked a few hundred miles an' back ev'ry leetle while. Keep our j'ints limber. We'll live longer fer it, an' thet'll please God sure, cuz I don't think he's hankerin' fer our society, not a bit. Don' make no difference t' him whuther we ride 'n a spring wagon er on the cars so long's we're right side up an' movin'. We need more steam. We're too slow. Kind o' think a leetle more steam in our religion wouldn't hurt us a bit. It's purty fur behind."

We got to Albany in the evening just in time for the night boat. Uncle Eb was a sight in his dusty broadcloth when we got off the cars, and I know my appearance could not have been prepossessing. Once we were aboard the boat and had dusted our clothes and bathed our hands and faces we were in better spirits.

"Consarn it," said Uncle Eb as we left the wash room, "le's have a dum good supper. I'll stan' treat."

"Comes a leetle bit high," he said as he paid the bill, "but I don' care if it does. 'Fore we left I says t' myself: 'Uncle Eb,' says I, 'you go right in fer a good time an' don' ye count the pennies. Everybody's a right t' be reckless once in seventy-five year.'"

We went to our stateroom a little after 9. I remember the berths had not been made up, and, removing our boots and coats, we lay down upon the bare mattresses. Even then I had a lurking fear that we might be violating some rule of steamboat etiquette. When I went to New York before I had dozed all night in the big cabin.

A dim light came through the shuttered door that opened upon the dining saloon, where the rattle of dishes for a time put away the possibility of sleep.

"I'll be awful glad t' see Hope," said Uncle Eb as he lay gaping.

"Guess I'll be happier to see her than she will to see me," I said.

"What put that in yer head?" Uncle Eb inquired.

"'Fraid we've got pretty far apart," said I.

"Shame on ye, Bill," said the old gentleman. "If thet's so, ye ain't done right. Hedn't orter let a girl like thet git away from ye—th' ain't another like her in this world."

"I know it," I said, "but I can't help it. Somebody's cut me out, Uncle Eb."

"'Tain't so," said he emphatically. "Ye want t' prance right up t' her."

"I'm not afraid of any woman," I said, with a great air of bravery, "but if she don't care for me I ought not to throw myself at her."

"Jerusalem!" said Uncle Eb, rising up suddenly. "What hev I gone an' done?"

He jumped out of his berth quickly, and in the dim light I could see him reaching for several big sheets of paper adhering to the back of his shirt and trousers. I went quickly to his assistance and began stripping off the broad sheets which, covered with some strongly adhesive substance, had laid a firm hold upon him. I rang the bell and ordered a light.

"Consarn it all! What be they—plasters?" said Uncle Eb, quite out of patience.

"Pieces of brown paper, covered with—West India molasses, I should think," said I.

"West Injy molasses!" he exclaimed. "By mighty! That makes me hotter'n a pancake. What's it on the bed fer?"

"To catch flies," I answered.

"An' ketched me," said Uncle Eb as he flung the sheet he was examining into a corner. "My extry good suit too!"

He took off his trousers. Then, holding them up to the light:

"They're split," said he mournfully. "Hed 'em fer more'n ten year too."

"That's long enough," I suggested.

"Got kind o' 'tached t' 'em," he said, looking down at them and rubbing his chin thoughtfully. Then we had a good laugh.

"You can put on the other suit," I suggested, "and when we get to the city we'll have these fixed."

"Leetle sorry, though," said he, "cuz that other suit don' look reel grand. This here one has been purty—purty scrumptious in its day, if I do say it."

"You look good enough in anything that's respectable," I said.

"Kind o' wanted t' look a leetle extry good, as ye might say," said Uncle Eb, groping in his big carpet bag. "Hope, she's terrible proud, an' if they should hev a leetle fiddlin' an' dancin' some night we'd want t' be as stylish as any on 'em. B'lieve I'll go an' git me a spang, bran' new suit anyway 'fore we go up t' Fuller's."

As we neared the city we both began feeling a bit doubtful as to whether we were quite ready for the ordeal.

"I thought so," I said. "Those I'm wearing aren't quite stylish enough, I'm afraid."

"They're han'some," said Uncle Eb, looking up over his spectacles, "but mebbe they ain't just as splendid as they'd orter be. How much money did David give ye?"

"One hundred and fifty dollars," I said, thinking it a very grand sum indeed.

"'Tain't enough," said Uncle Eb, looking up at me again. "Leastways not if ye're goin' t' hev a new suit. I want ye t' be spick an' span."

He picked up his trousers then and took out his fat leather wallet.

"Lock the door!" he whispered.

"Pop goes the weasel!" he exclaimed good naturedly, and then he began counting the bills.

"I'm not going to take any more of your money, Uncle Eb," I said.

"Tut, tut!" said he. "Don't ye try t' interfere. What d' ye think they'll charge in the city fer a reel splendid suit?"

He stopped and looked up at me.

"Probably as much as $50," I answered.

"Whew-w-w!" he whistled. "Purty steep, it is sartin!"

"Let me go as I am," said I. "Time enough to have a new suit when I've earned it."

"Waal," he said as he continued counting, "I guess you've earnt it already. Ye've studied hard an' tuk first honors, an' yer goin' where folks are purty middlin' proud an' haughty. I want ye t' be a reg'lar high stepper, with a nice, sleek coat. There," he whispered as he handed me the money, "take thet, an' don' ye never tell 'at I gi'n it t' ye."

I could not speak for a little while as I took the money for thinking of the many, many things this grand old man had done for me.

"Do ye think these boots 'll do?" he asked as he held up to the light the pair he had taken off in the evening.

"They look all right," I said.

"Ain't got no decent squeak t' 'em now, an' they seem t' look kind o' clumsy. How're your'n?" he asked.

I got them out from under the berth, and we inspected them carefully, deciding in the end they would pass muster.

The steward had made up our berths, when he came, and lit our room for us. Our feverish discussion of attire had carried us far past midnight, when we decided to go to bed.

"S'pose we mustn't talk t' no strangers there 'n New York," said Uncle Eb as he lay down. "I've read 'n the Tribune how they'll purtend t' be friends an' then grab yer money an' run like Sam Hill. If I meet any o' them fellers they're goin' t' find me purty middlin' poor comp'ny."

We were up and on deck at daylight, viewing the Palisades. The lonely feeling of an alien hushed us into silence as we came to the noisy and thickening river craft at the upper end of the city. Countless window panes were shining in the morning sunlight. This thought was in my mind—that somewhere in the innumerable host on either side was the one dearer to me than any other. We inquired our way at the dock and walked to French's hotel, on Printing House square. After breakfast we went and ordered all the grand new things we had planned to get. They would not be ready for two days, and after talking it over we decided to go and make a short call.

Hope, who had been up and looking for us a long time, gave us a greeting so hearty we began to get the first feeling of comfort since landing. She was put out about our having had breakfast, I remember, and said we must have our things brought there at once.

"I shall have to stay at the hotel awhile," I said, thinking of the new clothes.

"Why," said Mrs. Fuller, "this girl has been busy a week fixing your rooms and planning for you. We could not hear of your going elsewhere. It would be downright ingratitude to her."

A glow of red came into the cheeks of Hope that made me ashamed of my remark. I thought she looked lovelier in her pretty blue morning gown, covering a broad expanse of crinoline, than ever before.

"And you've both got to come and hear me sing tonight at the church," said she. "I wouldn't have agreed to sing if I had not thought you were to be here."

We made ourselves at home, as we were most happy to do, and that afternoon I went downtown to present to Mr. Greeley the letter that David Brower had given me.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Canthrarides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

HERO OF A DISASTER

Robert Smith, a Lake Life-Saver, Qualifies Himself for a Carnegie Medal.

DEFIES DEATH IN THE BILLOWS

To Aid in the Rescue of the Passengers and Crew of a Stranded Lake Vessel—Story That Thrills.

Holland, Mich., Nov. 25.—Whenever the story is told of the wreck of the passenger steamer Argo, from Chicago, which struck a sand bar while attempting to enter this harbor in the early hours of the morning, the name of Robert Smith will be held in veneration. The life-saving crew had labored hours in futile attempts to reach the stranded ship. Men and women passengers and the crew stood helplessly at the end of the life-saving line, not knowing how to manipulate the breeches buoy that would carry them 500 feet over the slender line to safety ashore. Then it was that Robert Smith showed himself a man who has in him the stuff of which heroes are made.

Lifeboat Is Manned Twice.

For hours the life-savers had vainly tried to row their lifeboat to the wreck, and had after repeated efforts been compelled to desist and resort to the cannon and the life line, it being impossible for a small boat to make headway in the fifty-mile southeast gale that raged on Lake Michigan. Nevertheless when the life line proved useless the doughty life savers immediately set out for another fight in their boat. This time they made more progress than at first, but were still unable to reach the wreck, when a line from the Argo was caught by one of the life saving crew.

Smith Does a Heroic Act.

Without a moment's hesitation Robert Smith tied the line around his body and plunged into the boiling lake, to be dragged aboard the wreck in a few moments, badly bruised, but still able to direct the sending ashore of the passengers and crew in the breeches buoy. Twenty-five passengers and thirteen of the crew were hauled ashore, but Captain John Stewart, with a few picked members of his crew, refused to desert the ship. At this writing they are still on board, the breeches buoy being kept in readiness for their rescue the moment the ship should begin to show signs of going to pieces.

NO PANIC ON BOARD

Two Lines Have To Be Shot Out for the Breeches Buoy.

Displaying remarkable self-control the Argo's passengers and crew betrayed no tendency to go into a panic as they anxiously watched for hours the desperate efforts being made for their rescue. Not only was the wreck, spectacular, and thrilling as it was devoid of fatalities, but more remarkable still no serious injury was reported in the case of any of the passengers or crew of the steamer. When Purser J. E. Hall summoned the women passengers to the breeches buoy the woman selected to make the first trip looked at the slender sagging line, shuddered and stepped back, giving place to Mrs. P. J. Niskern, of Chicago, who was the first to ride ashore through the drenching clouds of spray.

During one of the return trips of the buoy the cable parted, worn in two by friction on the steamer's rail. It was nearly noon then, and only eight or nine had been sent ashore, while the vessel had been stranded since 5:30 o'clock in the morning. The pumps were working well, and Captain Stewart had sent word ashore that his vessel's seams were not leaking to any dangerous extent, though he was pumping her full of water to hold her steady on the sandbar.

The lifeboat was resorted to once again, but efforts to reach the Argo were futile. With the beach cannon another life line was finally shot out to the wreck, and made fast about 2 p. m. The rescue then proceeded without further mishap. Darkness had fallen before the life-saving crew had finished the long and thrilling day's work, and when the men retired to their station they left a guard on watch to give the alarm should the men left on board the wreck appear to be in more immediate danger.

The names of the Argo's passengers as registered with the purser are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Johnson, Big Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. W. P. Canaan and little daughter, Grand Rapids, Mich.; H. H. Walker, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Niskern, Chicago; E. L. Craw, Grand Rapids, Mich.; L. Miller, address uncertain, appears in purser's record as Hillands; Captain F. Wild, Albany, Ill.; H. Brown, colored, Grand Rapids, Mich.; —— Parker, Grand Rapids, Mich.; H. G. Pelgrim, Holland, Mich.; George Pfuff, Chicago; O. C. Jensen, Holland; T. F. Brown, Ionia, Mich.; P. Endress, Ionia; P. Brusse, Holland; Mrs. C. W. Earle, Chicago; H. Jaress, Grand Rapids; L. O. Decamp, Ionia; M. B. Gilbert, Grand Rapids; C. Bennett, Fargo, N. D.; J. Burton, Chicago, and E. A. Adams, Chicago.

The purser kept no record of the crew, but among the members taken off the wreck were: Purser J. E. Hall, Manitowoc, Wis.; S. B. Benn, San Francisco; Harry Willis, Cairo, Ill.; John Burtker, Frankfort, Mich., and deckhands, F. Vail, W. Bemis, Oscar Lyon, C. Miller, James Sexton, Edward Dwyer, William Demdow and —— Francen, all of Chicago.

PAY DIRT ONCE MORE

Struck in the Investigation of the Methods of Life Insurance Companies.

SOME BIG CASH TRANSACTIONS

Developments During the Examination of a Bookkeeper.

"Generalissimo" Hamilton Appears to Have Been One Beneficiary —Story Is, However, Contradicted.

New York, Nov. 25.—Startling developments were brought out at the session of the Armstrong committee on insurance investigation in the course of a minute inquiry by Hughes into the syndicate transactions participated in by the New York Life Insurance company. The most important witness of the day was Milton M. Madison, a bookkeeper of the New York Life Insurance company, during whose examination it was brought out that in the case of the United States Steel Corporation syndicate, the managers of which were J. P. Morgan & Co., there appeared in one instance a profit due to the New York Life of $87,187, from which was deducted, no reason being given, the sum of $59,310 paid to Andrew Hamilton, who has been described in the course of the investigation as the "insurance legislative generalissimo."

Hamilton Gets an Advance.

It appeared from records produced by Hughes that an account of J. P. Morgan & Co. with Hamilton showed that in December, 1901, that firm had advanced to Hamilton the sum of $56,720; that on Oct. 1, 1902, this amounted with interest to $59,310, and that it was then cancelled by the entry of that amount to Hamilton's credit. The entry of this amount in the account of the New York Life read "As per cancelled statement and arrangement with Mr. G. W. Perkins." It was also developed that the participation in the syndicate of the New York Life was effected through the New York Security and Trust company, by which one-fourth of the profits of the former company were retained.

BIG LOAN TO BOSTON MEN

They Deny It Positively, However—Perkins Makes a Comment.

Pressed by Hughes to tell whether he knew of any other instance of money due to the New York Life being paid to a third party, as in the Hamilton case, Madison recalled the payment in 1904 of $40,000 to George W. Perkins, representing the profit on a loan of $930,000 to the Boston firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. The profit, witness said, came in the form of a check on the First National bank, which he cashed, giving the money to Perkins. What the latter did with it the witness did not know. No entry of the transaction was made on the books of the New York Life.

Other witnesses examined during the day were George T. Wilson, fourth vice president of the Equitable; Francis W. Jackson, auditor, and Gerald Brown, in charge of the bond department of the Equitable. Chairman Armstrong then announced an adjournment until Monday morning next.

George W. Perkins, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., gave out the following statement in relation to the testimony brought out in the insurance investigation: "The transactions referred to before the insurance investigating committee today were perfectly proper ones. If the natural course of the inquiry does not make this clear I am sure the committee will give me an opportunity to offer further testimony in the matter."

Boston, Nov. 25.—A member of the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co., of this city, on being shown a copy of the testimony of Bookkeeper Madison, of the New York Life Insurance company at the insurance investigation, with reference to an alleged loan of $920,000 to the Boston firm, said: "There never was any such transaction. The statement is either a mistake or a mis-statement.

Lake Steamer Ablaze.

Detroit, Nov. 25.—The old time wooden freight steamer Saginaw, owned by C. W. Kotcher, of Detroit, was partly destroyed by fire while passing up the St. Clair river. A lamp exploded in the engine room, spreading fire in every direction and the flames were beyond control in a few moments. The boat was beached and the fire consumed the boat from amidships to the stern. The loss is about $15,000.

Good-Bye to the "Daddy Dollar."

Washington, Nov. 25.—The annual report of Director Roberts, of the United States mint bureau, declares that the coinage of the silver dollar is at an end unless in the future new legislation upon the subject is passed. The total issue of silver dollars from 1793 to the cessation of dollar coinage has been $578,303,848.

Federal Supervision Wanted.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—A movement was begun in Chicago by members of the Iroquois club to hold a convention in Chicago of representatives of all the principal political clubs throughout the country to discuss ways and means of securing federal supervision of life insurance companies.

THUGS MAKE A BREAK

Desperate Attempt to Escape from the Missouri Penitentiary at Jeffersonville.

TWO MURDERS ARE COMMITTED

Another Officer and Two Convicts Wounded, One Fatally.

Gate Blown Open, Followed by a Running Battle in the Streets, but the Fugitives Captured Finally.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 25. — A desperate attempt to escape from the state penitentiary was made by four convicts, resulting in a hot battle with weapons and nitro-glycerine at the prison gate, a running fight through the streets of Jefferson City and the final capture of the four convicts, two of whom were shot and wounded. Two prison officers were shot dead and a third seriously wounded. The dead are John Clay, gate-keeper, and E. Allison, officer of the commissary department. Wounded—Deputy Warden R. E. See, shot in arm and hip; Harry Vaughn, convict, St. Louis, shot in arm; Hiram Blake, convict, from Grunry county, fatally hurt; died later.

Deputy Warden Is Shot Down.

There was not the slightest premonition of any trouble within the prison walls. Suddenly Convicts Harry Vaughn, Charles Raymond, Hiram Blake, George Ryan and Eli Zeigler, who were working in close proximity to the prison gate, inside the inclosure, as if by given signal made a rush for the gate. From their pockets they drew pistols, and it is presumed that at least one of them carried a bottle of nitro-glycerine. Where these weapons and the explosive were obtained has not yet been discovered. Rushing past the gate they entered Deputy Warden See's office and shot him as he sat in his chair. He sank back and was unable to resist them. Instantly they returned to the gate and met Gateman John Clay, who had been alarmed by the shots. Before he could raise his weapon he was shot dead. Guard E. Allison, who was attracted by the shooting, was their next victim. He was shot through the head and died almost instantly.

Outside Gate Blown Open.

Gateman Clay had left the wagon gate ajar when he appeared and was shot dead. The convicts rushed through, dragging his body with them, slammed the gate shut and fastened in on the inside. They were then in the wagon entrance to the penitentiary, this entrance being about forty feet long by fifteen feet wide, and leading to the public street through another double gate of steel. This outside gate was locked, but the desperate convicts were deterred but for a moment. Placing their nitro-glycerine under the outside gate they blew an opening through the massive steel doors.

RUNNING FIGHT IN THE STREET

Thugs Capture a Wagon, and Use Its Owner as a Shield.

Before the smoke had cleared the opening they dashed through a number of "trusty" convicts working in the street, and ran madly. Zeigler, it was found, had failed to leave the penitentiary walls. Almost before the four escaping convicts had covered the distance of one block the prison officials, heavily armed, were in pursuit, shooting as they ran. Pedestrians jumped behind trees, ran into houses and crouched down behind any obstacle that presented refuge. Women screamed and fled precipitately, while the majority of men seized weapons and joined the prison officials in the pursuit.

A desperate fear gave speed to the convicts, and they outran their pursuers. Near the Missouri Pacific railway station they came upon a wagon being driven by Orville Lane. Jumping into this wagon they seized Lane and held him to act as a shield from the bullets of their pursuers. One convict lashed the horse into a run. The wild ride was of short duration, however, as another posse consisting of city police, augmented by citizens, appeared in front of them, and seeing that further flight was cut off they stopped the horse and made a desperate stand.

Lane was thrown to the bottom of the wagon, and crouching over him, shielding themselves to the best possible advantage behind the sides of the vehicle, they opened fire, back to back, on their pursuers. The prison officials shouted to them to surrender or they would be shot dead. Their only reply was a volley from their revolvers. Then followed one of the most desperate street battles that ever took place in the annals of escaping convicts in Jefferson City.

The possemen jumped behind trees and shot with telling effect, splintering the wagon and finally putting a bullet through one of the convicts, who fell to the ground. Thereupon, seeing that death was inevitable and further resistance useless, the convicts surrendered. It was found that Convicts Vaughn and Blake were suffering from bullet wounds. Driver Orville Lane and Convicts Ryan and Raymond were uninjured. The convicts were immediately taken back to the penitentiary, where the wounded were given medical attention, while the uninjured were placed in solitary confinement in dungeon cells.

WILL HOLD AN AUTOPSY

Annapolis Court Martial Wants To Be Certain of What Killed Cadet Branch.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25.—The court martial trying the Branch case has granted a request of the counsel for the accused that the body of the late Midshipman Branch, whose death occurred after his fight with Meriwether, be exhumed and an autopsy held. The case has reached the stage where essential points rest on matters which the experts admit could not be satisfactorily determined without an autopsy.

There was something of a sensation when Judge Advocate Marix challenged the eligibility of Admiral McCormick, of the court, on the ground that he is taking too much interest in behalf of the accused. This challenge the court rejected. It was because the admiral has closely questioned the medical witnesses when they testified their certainty that there was nothing organically wrong with Branch, the admiral apparently believing there must have been something wrong. As a matter of fact hundreds of men have been pounded in the head much more severely than Branch was, and were not in the least injured.

The admiral asked Dr. Stone, who examined Branch physically and testified to his perfectly normal condition, if the heart examination was thorough, and the witness said it was. "Then," said Admiral McCormick, "if I showed you the record where a young man passed that examination and two weeks after died from embolism of the brain due to vegetation of the heart being carried there would you change your answer?" "I would not," said Dr. Stone, "mistakes, of course, may occur."

Marshall Field, Jr., Is Better.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—The prospects for Marshall Field, Jr.'s, recovery seem brighter at this writing than at any time since he accidentally shot himself. The following bulletin has been issued by Dr. Billings and Dr. Bevan: "The general condition of Mr. Field is good. Pulse, 80; temperature, 98.8."

Sullivan Bests Jimmy Gardner.

San Francisco, Nov. 25.—After twenty rounds of sensational fighting Mike (Twin) Sullivan, of Cambridge, Mass., defeated Jimmy Gardner, of Lowell, Mass. The decision was a popular on its merits. The fight was full of skillful boxing and foot work, hard punching and well directed efforts.

King Haakon Greets His People

Christiania, Nov. 25.—On arriving at Horten, on the Christiania fjord, King Haakon and Queen Maud sent a telegram of greeting to the Norwegian people. Their journey has been delayed by storms.

HAS NOTHING TO SAY

Dougherty Pleads Guilty and in Silence Receives a Penitentiary Sentence.

GETS ONE TO FOURTEEN YEARS

So Ends the Chapter for a Trusted Citizen—Bride Fatally Burned—State News Notes.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 25. — "I find it necessary to send him to the penitentiary as the law provides. It will be a severe punishment. In count No. 200 the sentence will be confinement in the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., for an indeterminate term, not less than one year or more than fourteen years, solitary confinement. The counts 21, 240, 243, and 244, the same sentence. That is all."

Prisoner Had Pleaded Guilty.

And that was all Judge Worthington said when he sentenced Newton C. Dougherty, after the latter had pleaded guilty to five of the forgery charges against him. The prisoner, was acvin, one of his attorneys, his son Ralph and a deputy sheriff, and as he left he said to the jailer: "Well, I guess I'll have to do it." While the court was speaking Dougherty looked straight ahead of him and did not move a muscle. He was taken back to jail, escorted by his attorneys.

Statement for the Prisoner.

When the prisoner was arraigned Attorney Irwin addressed the court. He said that Dougherty had turned all of his property over to him and that he (Irvin) had been given power of attorney to settle the affairs of the prisoner. He added that Dougherty's property would amount to more than the school board defalcations. He admitted that Dougherty had been careless and that he was willing to take his punishment.

Blasted a Fine Reputation.

For nearly thirty years the banker-schoolmaster had been regarded as honest. For nearly a quarter of a century he had been prominently identified with state and national educational organizations, his prominence leading to his election in 1896 as president of the National Educational association at the Buffalo convention. He has been president of the Illinois Teachers' association, and in 1901 served as Illinois commissioner at the Paris exposition.

Was Friendly with Many Notables.

His prominece in pedagogical circles brought him the close friendship of educators like Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, and Dr. William Rainey Harper, president of the University of Chicago. He was one of the three trustees in charge of the reserve fund of $147,000 held by the National Educational asociation.

Been Stealing for Many Years.

The alleged stealings from the school fund appeared to have been going on in a desultory fashion for years and years. The prestige Dougherty enjoyed as a capitalist led the school board to give him practical carte blanche in the control of the funds and almost incredible power in their disposal.

BRIDE IS FATALLY BURNED

Dress Catches Fire at an Open Grate Two Hours Before Her Wedding.

Taylorville, Ill., Nov. 25. — Two hours before the time set for her wedding Miss Ada Wells was fatally burned when her dress, on which she had spilled gasoline, caught fire from an open grate. The tragedy occurred shortly before the first of the guests invited to the wedding began to arrive at the house.

Miss Wells had busied herself all afternoon and evening helping to prepare the wedding supper. In the afternoon she used gasoline, and accidentally spilled some on her clothing. Then she left the kitchen and was on her way to dress for her wedding when as she passed through the sitting room her clothing burst into a flame.

He Gave Two Worthless Checks.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 25. — Charged with obtaining money by false pretenses, Senator Bartley, of Shawneetown, a member of the last general assembly, has been arrested in Springfield. A liquor firm charges him with passing a worthless check for $12.50. The firm asserts that Bartley ran a bar bill to the amount of $7.50 during the last session of the legislature and tendered a check on the Shawneetown bank, which was returned with the statement that Bartley had no funds there. Recently he took up the former check and wrote one for $12.50 on another bank, receiving $5 in cash from the firm. It is alleged this check was returned marked "no funds."

Milling Plant in Ashes.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 25.—The plant of the Decatur Milling company at Decatur was totally destroyed by fire, involving a loss of $50,000, covered by $30,000 insurance. The fire originated near the engine room. Owing to the gale which was blowing several adjacent factories were endangered by the flying embers, and the dry kiln of the Decatur Chair company caught fire and was also consumed with a loss of $2,500.

Suicide in Their Blood.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 25. — Florence Winn, a domestic, aged 21, committed suicide by hanging. She was the fourth in the family to seek self-destruction.

FORAKER'S RATE-RULING BILL

Salient Points of the Measure He Will Advocate for Freight Tariff Regulation.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Senator Foraker has presented to the senate committee on interstate commerce the draft of his bill to amend the interstate commerce law. The senator stated that he had tried to meet the complaints against present railroad conditions, and at the same time avoid conferring upon the interstate commerce commission, or any similar body, the power over railroad rates.

The Foraker bill, however, provides for enjoining the publishing and charging of excessive rates, and for enjoining any discriminations forbidden by law, whether as between shippers, places, commodities, or otherwise, and whether effected by means of rates, rebates, classifications, private cars, preferentials "or in any other manner whatever." While this does not confer upon the court the power to fix a rate it does authorize the court to say what is an unlawful rate, and how much is unlawful, and to enjoin the carrier from charging more than is found to be lawful.

The bill also is designed to prohibit the giving of passes, to allow free access to railroad documents, and to meet complaints as to rail rates on export and import freight. When violations of the law are charged the question goes to a United States circuit court for decision and the action of the court is to be by injunction.

SITUATION IN CUBA

Seems To Be Much Revolutionary Ferment, but No Serious Trouble So Far as Reported.

Havana, Nov. 25.—It is persistently reported from San Juan de Martinez, province of Pinar del Rio that Representative Pino Guerra, who is charged by the prosecuting judge of San Juan de Martinez with being the leader of the insurrectionary plot in that vicinity, and who is evading capture, now has a following of over fifty men, and it is said that other friends of the congressman, former officers of the revolutionary army, have similar followings.

General Rodriguez, commander of the rural guards, informed the Associated Press that there is absolutely nothing confirmatory of these rumors. Colonel Piedra, who is wanted in Havana in connection with the finding of arms at Cerro, a suburb of Havana, is reported to have gathered together a band of twenty insurrectionary comrades near Batabano. The government is inclined to deal leniently with all the suspects, believing that leniency will be the best policy.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE A. F. L.

Socialist Resolutions Ruled Out on a Point of Order—No Charter for Stogie Makers.

Pittsburg, Nov. 25.—The most important decision reached by the American Federation of Labor was the refusal to grant a charter to the National Stogie Maker's League, because the trade is so closely identified with cigar making. The socialist delegates introduced two resolutions on public ownership which the committee on resolutions had non-concurred in and the discussion which followed was spirited, but while at its height was cut off by the point that it was politics and ruled out by the constitution.

The following resolutions recommended by the education committee were unanimously adopted: Condemning convict labor when in competition with free labor; providing for the organization of a woman's union label league, and in favor of woman suffrage. A resolution condemning the taxation laws now in force in the United States was defeated, and one for further restricting immigration to the United States was adopted.

HE DID BETTER $35,000

Assay Office Cashier Office Said to Have Stolen $100,000 from Miners' "Dust."

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 25.—Late developments in the arrest of George Edward Adams, cashier in the United States assay office here, for embezzlement, indicate that instead of stealing $35,000 in gold dust, to which he has confessed, his peculations may amount close to $100,000, and that instead of covering a period of six months they will run farther back than 1903. Adams' bondsmen have withdrawn from the $30,000 bond, and Adams has been remanded to jail to await his preliminary hearing.

Several Alaska men have already informed the federal officials that they have been defrauded by some one in the assay office. One man declares that out of $6,000 in gold dust deposited there only $5,200 was returned to him. Friends of the family have not dared to inform Mrs. Adams of her husband's trouble, for a few days ago she became a mother.

British Cabinet Not to Resign.

London, Nov. 25.—It is understood that the proposal for the collective resignation of the cabinet was rejected at the cabinet meeting yesterday, and that the ministers arrived at the decision that it would be better to dissolve parliament themselves and appeal to the electorates.

Naval Demonstration to Proceed.

London, Nov. 25.—The foreign office has informed the Associated Press that the porte having refused to accede to the demands of the powers the naval demonstration will proceed, the matter now being in the hands of the naval commanders.

Advice to Young Husbands.

If you are a husband, and as such soon expect to become a father, take heed. Before you can realize your fondest dreams it is necessary that great suffering be borne by her whom you love better than yourself; you would do anything in your power to alleviate her suffering, would you not?

A Natural Laxative

Inward cleansing is as necessary as outward bathing. To keep the bowels free and regular is of even greater importance than to keep the skin-pores from becoming clogged. The neglect of either invites disease. Everyone needs a natural laxative occasionally, to free the bowels of accumulated impurities. For this purpose take the greatest boon ever offered to those who suffer from the ills that follow constipation. For over fifty years Beecham's Pills have been famous as a Stomach corrective, a Liver regulator and Bowel laxative. They never gripe nor cause pain. Powerful purgatives are dangerous. Avoid them. Use Beecham's Pills. They give relief without doing violence to any organ. Their action is in harmony with physical laws. Take them regularly and the necessity for their use becomes less frequent. They are a natural laxative and a positive cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache and Dyspepsia.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

PILOT ACETYLENE GAS PLANT

WM. RINK

DIXON, ILLINOIS

WM. RINK, Dear Sir:
In regard to the PILOT ACETYLENE GAS PLANT you furnished me, it has been entirely satisfactory and a great improvement over the oil lamps we used before. It is always ready and handy, and the cost of operating it light. We would not want to go back to oil lamps again. Respectfully yours,
(Signed) GEORGE S. RANSOM.

WM RINK, Dear Sir: The Pilot Acetylene Plant which we have been using has satisfactorily met every expectation. The light is clear, steady, soft and much better an illuminant than any other gas used in our city, or even the electric light, especially that generated by the Dixon plant. It is a peculiarly pleasant light to read by. I cheerfully bear this testimony unsolicited.

Gave Good Matanee Performance.

The "Hoosier Girl" Company gave a splendid matanee performance this afternoon at the Dixon opera house to a good audience. The leading people, Gus Cohan and Miss Kate Watson, won warm praises from the audience. The whole company gave good satisfaction. The play does not drag, it is novel, cleverly constructed and splendidly acted. Special scenery is carried. It is without exception the best rural comedy on the road. Miss Kate Watson is justly conceded to be the peer of all country girl impersonators on the stage today. The company will give another performance tonight. Last night the company played at the "Grand" in Freeport. A packed house greeted them.

Old Folks Service Tomorrow.

At the Methodist church tomorrow Rev. Dr. McLean will conduct an "Old Folks' Service" to which the old people of the church congregation and general public are cordially invited. The subject of the address will be "How to Grow Old Gracefully."

In the evening there will be a temperance service, the subject of the address will be "The Temperance Problem and How Best to Solve It."

HERPICIDE PRODUCES MARVELOUS RESULTS

The lady whose photograph is here reproduced—writes the following letter about

Newbro's Herpicide

"the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ."

The Herpicide Company,
Detroit, Mich.

I am sending you my photograph to show what Newbro's Herpicide has done for me. Since I have first tested it thoroughly on my own hair, I have used it exclusively in giving scalp treatments, and with wonderful success. I would not think of trying to get along without it.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. ANNA CONNOR.
Hair and scalp specialist,
No. 2807 Archer Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

The natural beauty and abundance of this lady's hair is a striking illustration of what Herpicide will accomplish, and this is only one of the thousands of letters that the Herpicide Company have on file from people all over the world who are pleased to tell of the marvelous results obtained by the use of Herpicide.

The Only Positive Safeguard Against Baldness is in the Use of known throughout the world as "the original remedy that that kills the dandruff germ." Herpicide is a new, scientific nonirritant germicide and prophylactic for the scalp—and positively cures dandruff, stops falling hair and prevents baldness. No one wants to lose their hair and it is a mighty serious matter to contemplate. Well, why trifle with unknown or so-called Hair-Growers, when you are absolutely guaranteed that Herpicide will not only save what hair you have, but will restore it to its natural luxuriance. It is the dandruff germ, which infests the scalp, that causes the hair to fall out. Herpicide will eradicate this microbic disease of the scalp and protect it against re-infection, and your hair will then grow as nature intended. NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE has reached the pinnacle of fame as a hair preparation and enjoys a distinction strictly its own. As a Hair Dressing—Herpicide is truly exquisite on account of its dainty and refreshing odor which is characteristic—it beautifies the hair and leaves it soft, glossy, light and fluffy—it contains no oil, grease or sedimentary substance neither does it stain nor dye the hair.

Stops Itching of the Scalp Almost Instantly.

DANDRUFF IS AN ACTUAL DISEASE

and a very serious one, for it leads sooner or later to chronic baldness, which is incurable—the disease must be treated in a thoughtful, persistent and scientific manner. The dandruff germ must be destroyed and kept out of the scalp with NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE, because it is the only remedy that will actually kill the dandruff germ.
